Comments	We do not object in principle to the applicants putting up a building as long as it complies with the established planning rules and is for domestic and not commercial use. The building is however higher than normally permitted in close proximity to our boundary. The plans do not show what the intended use of the building is or say whether it has services connected, for example drainage which may affect our property due to the proximity. A duct which had been fitted in the wall facing our boundary has been removed and patched over with a plywood patch which is unsightly.
