No surprise that the judicial review was settled with a proviso that WHBC could not be challenged on the outcome of a third meeting following the original refusal for planning on this unsuitable site.

Whilst the council's actions remain disgracefully secret in this matter, the site is still one that would represent an unjustified removal of Green Belt. Further (as everyone knows) it would create an extension of the Cuffley boundary for (undoubted) future housing proposals to infill the gap created between areas of Green Belt and should be declined.

No one is prepared to be honest about the travel chaos to be inflicted upon us with new builds already approved and allowing Wells Farm to be developed would just add to the impending disaster. However I suppose Cuffley remains out of sight out of mind, but still a valuable cash cow for WHBC....

Yours in continuing disgust.
