

The red box is a rough indicator of where the condensing units will be placed.