Comments	<input type="text" value="Welwyn GARDEN City is supposed to be just that, a GARDEN city not a London suburb. We do not want high rise blocks here, this is what most people from out of the area were trying to get away from. You also need to take into account the lack of infrastructure to support all these proposed new residents to the area, doctors surgeries, hospital, schools etc. Already the nearest hospital can't cope and the roads to and from at peak times make it difficult, in fact impossible when the motorway is shut because of accidents, to travel to. This is just plain greed on behalf of the developers and council to even consider high rise flats, which locals won't be able to afford anyway and the very small percentage of those being for social housing via the council is laughable."/>
