Comments	<input type="text" value="For a start, the space is far too small to properly support 312 flats, there's no structure in place to handle all the new people, eg public transport, surgeries, schools etc. Having high rise buildings in the middle of the town centre ruins the look of the centre, not to mention the extra noise, rubbish, lack of parking for all new residents, there's nothing for kids to do as it is, so what will new kids do? It's not a very safe place for any elderly people, being right on a busy road and roundabout. It's not in keeping with the ethos of welwyn garden city, there are now less and less green spaces, more and more ugly buildings. Welwyn Garden City is becoming a suburb of London and any extra money will largely go back to London."/>
