Comments	<input type="text" value="I have calmed down, got a cup of coffee, and am re-reading your letter of 11th January, and looking at the pictures of the Campus East Car Park. I think the middle of the suggested site is attractive with just a few people. I think you would agree that it is not how it will look in real life with over 300 housing units, plus numerous children. How can you agree to 5 storeys that will inevitably limit light into the central site? I think the balconies are attractive but not with 5 storeys. My understanding of a potential brownfield site is where there were already buildings not little used car parks. Is Ebenezer Howard's vision of a Garden City to be conserved or is the desire to make money turning WGC into Concrete City? Therefore I strongly object to the development proposed as there are far too many housing units and, in my opinion, it is not a brownfield site."/>
