Comments	<input type="text" value="This is demolishing the Garden city. As a resident I was, understandably, not allowed to remove more than 50% green space at the front and need planning permission to remove a tree in my back garden. Some neighbours have not been allowed to remove a tree. How can a construction company remove virtually ALL green space and get away with it. The tranquility and appealing nature of WGC is the way it was built. No high rise blocks, no ruined, lots of green land, now going, roads and infrastructure built with limited scope for expansion no ruined. You think the new build in panshanger was done well with lots of green land. You are turning this city into a concrete jungle. Furthermore what is less appealing coming in via train then to look at a multitude of high rise blocks. No greenery no tranquility. Nothing now separates this beautiful city from London. I urge you to stop these proposals from construction companies to make a quick pound. When are you building MORE schools to compensate?"/>
