Comments	<input type="text" value="The ethos behind the development of Welwyn Garden City was for it to be a GARDEN city, where people can live in a green environment with gardens and green spaces. Affordable and rentable housing for it's residents close to their place of work and transport. The building of flats high in the sky with no gardens is not part of that dream of Ebenezer Howard, nor it's current residents. It is no good saying that the residents of these high-rise flats will have no need for cars - they will own them anyway and where do the park them?"/>
