Comments	<input type="text" value="Regarding new builds in Broadwater Road Welwyn Garden City. We moved to the Garden City over 30 years ago from London to get out of the 'concrete jungle, only to find that you know plan to do the same thing with high rise flats. It is a garden city that should be kept quaint and pleasant to look at and walk through. The streets in WGC are not kept in a good state of repair ie verges and pavements etc. With the new build does that mean that the money and maintenance that should be spent on the actual garden city becomes secondary to this so called 'new build'. I can't believe that with the present restraints in regard to what you can and can't do in regard to property and surrounding area, that suddenly it's ok to build flats. Well it's not.
