I feel absolutely gutted and get quite emotional when I see what is being built along Broadwater Rd. WGC. It seems the council are intent on creating a slum with little regard to the welfare of the people who have to live in those proposed eyesores and also to the people who live close by.

The proposals are morally wrong on so many levels. They are totally at odds with Garden City living. Cramming so many people into such places is going to lead to a huge rise in crime and anti-social behaviour, making more work for an already overstretched police force. I agree that more housing is needed, but it needs to be of a decent quality with gardens and room to breathe which is what the Garden City ethos is supposed be all about.

I wonder how many of the planning committee would actually like to live in one of the ghettos they are permitting greedy developers to build, or even how many of them actually live nearby?!!!!

Surely building houses and low rise flats in a pleasant environment would be beneficial not only to the people who live in them, but to the whole town.

Looks like Welwyn Garden City will have to be renamed Welwyn Slum City.
