Comments	<input type="text" value="This development is another on top of another in this area and one of the buildings is 9 storeys! I thought we the people of Welwyn Garden had said 9 storeys is too high in the previous development nearby. We gain quite a lot of tourism from being a garden city. We will become Welwyn Urban City. No way could we hold on to the title of being a garden City with that kind of density! I appreciate that sites like the Bio park and the shredded wheat site have to be developed and there is pressure from the conservative government to pile in as many dwellings as possible. Where are these people going to park? Families have lots of cars these days where I live there are families some with 4 cars per family let alone with family members visiting at weekends parking is a nightmare in Welwyn Garden already. Where are these people going to exercise, walk with friends or children play football maybe the campus roundabout? Please think of the future we are not a London suburb!"/>
