Comments	<input type="text" value="Same comments as I have made on the Bio Park and Wheat Quarter proposals. I believe all these are for buildings which are too high and out of keeping of what is the world's second garden city. They should be lower than the landmark shredded wheat factory. If you get the train to Croydon you see this kind of development there, but I believe Welwyn Garden City should follow a different path which could provide more housing but retain some of the ideals behind the original plan for the town."/>
