Comments	<input type="text" value="The images I have seen of the proposed development are entirely out of keeping with the rest of Welwyn Garden City. The buildings appear to be taller than ANY existing buildings in the town, and would completely hide the old Shredded Wheat silos from view. What was the point of keeping the silos, just to obscure them behind a mass of high rise buildings? I would also question how many people would be living in these dwellings and where the amenities for them will be located? (In particular doctors, dentists, schools, leisure facilities and open spaces). As a Garden City, Welwyn is already very populated and seems to be losing green spaces. This is entirely against the Garden City ethos."/>
