Comments	<input type="text" value="No matter how the developer proposes to change the plans for this site, it is still too dense, too high and without enough infrastructure locally to support it. The developer has in the past been given permission to build one of their proposals which until now they haven't done, therefore I consider that they won't stop submitting new proposals until they have filled every inch of this site with their ridiculous idea of homes. This is a GARDEN City, not a London slum area and to build according to the developers plans will only cause the area to become a slum area affecting also the prices of the houses in Welwyn Garden in years to come. Throw it out."/>
